F06 WORDQ 4

WordQ 4 is a flexible and intuitive word prediction program which floats seamlessly within any writing application. It offers a list of suggested words to choose from. It suggests words based upon frequency and context. A user can also draw upon words from imported topic lists. A word from the list can be selected by clicking on it or pressing the corresponding number key. Speech feedback is offered to assist in reading the words.

New and enhanced features in version 4 include:

- Exam mode
- Advanced word prediction dictionaries, averaging less than 2 keystrokes to predict contextually relevant next words
- Simplified pronunciation editor
- Creative spelling prediction now includes hyphenated words that are predicted after the hyphen
- Topic list extraction tool to build topic word lists
- Reads most digital text including web pages, pdf and documents.

Access an overview of the program and a download link of a 30 Day trial version at <http://www.strategictransitions.com/productDetail.php?id=2>

WordQ can be purchased in Australia through Spectronics. A detailed description can be found in their software catalogue section at <http://www.spectronics.com.au/catalogue/software> iWordQ on the iPad offers a unique word prediction mode and a range of reading modes to enhance comprehension and readability of text. Details provided at <http://www.goqsoftware.com/iWordQ.php>
